
THE HUNTINGTON AND THE MARYLAND

AT

PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

AMONG the many palatial tourist hotels of California, The Huntington is pre-eminent in luxury and service.

Its location, in the fashionable Oak Knoll section of the city, is magnificent, overlooking the citrus groves and vineyards of the San Gabriel Valley, with low lying hills and the blue Pacific towards the south and west.

Northward, the serrated pinnacles of the Sierra Madre range tower a mile high, in winter glistening with a snowy mantle, while all around one are orange trees with their burden of golden fruit and gardens of everblooming flowers of a hundred varieties.

The construction, throughout, is of steel and concrete and absolutely fireproof.

Everything possible is provided for the comfort and pleasure of guests during the season from January to May.

Under the same management as The Huntington, is The Maryland, located just outside the main business district of Pasadena.

For many years The Maryland has been a popular all-the-year tourist hotel and is unique in many respects.

Its pergolas, bungalows and high class shops of several kinds distinguish it from all other hotels.

It combines the comfort and simplicity of home life and the luxuries and diversions of a thoroughly modern metropolitan hotel.

HOTEL DEL CORONADO

CORONADO BEACH, CALIFORNIA

UNDER sapphire skies, basking in the warm rays of a twelve-months summer sun, staggering under a growth of luxuriant semi-tropical vegetation and where the usually placid waters of the deep Pacific fondly lap the sands of a broad white beach—lies Coronado, like a glittering gem in a piercing light.

Among tall, dignified palms, stately pines and flowers in a riotous confusion of color, winding roadways and shady, inviting paths, arises the rambling, homelike structure which has endeared itself to countless thousands—Hotel Del Coronado.

Like a castle in an old-time fairy tale stands the famous building. One could easily imagine that it had grown on the spot, so naturally does it occupy its position of sympathetic understanding with the ideas of the landscape architect.

It is this serene environment of peaceful tranquility that causes the traveler to linger for more of the enchantment of the place.

In summer clothing you may sprawl upon the grass in January. Kissed by the dancing sunlight and fanned by the soft, soothing, salt sea air, color is restored to pallid cheeks. Oddly enough, you are promised the same delightful sunshine and cooling breezes in July.

HOTEL DEL MONTE

DEL MONTE, CALIFORNIA

DEL MONTE offers to the traveler seeking rest, recreation and new scenes, the attractions of the world's most famous mountain and seaside resorts, with many others exclusively its own. Not only does one find at Del Monte a modern splendidly furnished and admirably conducted hotel, but here is a wonderful park which ranks high among the finest examples of landscape gardening in existence. Del Monte is more than a mere hotel. It is more indeed a locality, being the center of a region full of historic memories of California, where its constitution was framed, the scene of social and political activities in the early days of the Spanish and Mexican occupation.

Here history has been in the making since the early part of the sixteenth century. In 1542, only fifty years after Columbus discovered America, Cabrillo sailed to this port and marked it on his charts. In 1602, eighteen years before the landing of the Pilgrim fathers at Plymouth Rock, Viscaino raised the cross and named this bay Monterey, in honor of his patron, the Duke of Monterey. Here the first Mission in Northern California, founded by Father Junipero Serra in 1770, can still be seen, as can the second Mission, founded in 1771. These are the Mission San Carlos Borromeo in Monterey (1770), and the Mission del Rio Carmelo at Carmel.

THE ARLINGTON

SANTA BARBARA, CALIFORNIA

BUT a few years after California became one of the States of our Union, Santa Barbara loomed large in the eyes of Pacific Coast residents and visitors as an ideal resort, both from location and climatic conditions.

With the development of Santa Barbara came the construction of a hotel to accommodate her visitors, and for years the old Arlington was the center of resort life in Southern California.

Upon the same historic spot where stood this first of California's coast resorts the new Arlington raises its towers amid the palms and pepper trees of long ago.

Architecturally the Arlington is one of the most beautiful buildings on the Pacific Coast, and as a hotel structure it is as near perfection as modern design can render it. Its plans are so arranged as to gain the benefit of California's sunshine for every one of its apartments, its shaded porches furnishing dozens of cosy retreats and attractive nooks.

Since the original Arlington was constructed the hotel has carried with it a reputation for excellence of service and magnificence of equipment. The new hotel has brought all of these features down to modern perfection, thus combining the acme of hotel possibilities with one of the most beautiful locations on the Pacific seaboard.

GLENWOOD MISSION INN

AT

RIVERSIDE, CALIFORNIA

NESTLED in the center of twenty-five thousand acres of orange groves stands California's Mission Inn, the most unique hotel in all the world.

In its architecture it is a replica of Mission days, its cloistered walls, shady corridors and sunlit courts surrounding the visitor with an atmosphere of those days when California was in her infancy and the pathway of the Padres had just been broken along the coast.

All of these romantic features have been so magnificently merged by the designers of this famous resort that they each become a part and parcel of a great modern hotel, basking in California's sunshine and perfumed with the aroma of millions of orange blossoms.

The Mission Inn covers an entire block in the center of the beautiful city of Riverside, the perfect type of Mission architecture of its construction being reflected in the various public buildings of the city, all of which lie in close proximity to the hotel.

The service and cuisine of the Mission Inn are as perfect as is its architecture, its management being directly in the hands of Frank Miller, whose brain conceived the unique features that have rendered his Inn world-famous.

In every direction from Riverside extend magnificent roadways that are the joy of the motorist, winding as they do through one of California's most beautiful and interesting sections, of which the Mission Inn forms a most attractive center.

HOTEL HOLLYWOOD

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

AWAY from the business center, but still in Los Angeles, is the Hotel Hollywood, situated at the base of the Santa Monica mountains. The wide-spreading hospitable building contains one hundred and fifty rooms and is encircled by spacious porches which can be enjoyed winter or summer. The refreshing ocean breeze, palms and luxuriant shrubbery temper the warm days, while gay flowers and sweet odors make the winter tourist forget the discomforts of the ice-bound East. The kitchens are immaculately kept and open at all times for inspection of guests. The dining-room overlooks a beautiful garden. Many of the sleeping-rooms have private balconies or sleeping porches which command beautiful views of the foothills.

Situated on the main boulevard to Santa Barbara and the North; street cars pass the doors every five minutes to the shopping, banking and amusement districts of Los Angeles.

Golf, tennis, billiards, pool and music are among the varied amusements. To those fond of walking, the many canyons back of the hotel are a great attraction.

Hollywood is one of the most delightful residence sections of Los Angeles. Climatically and scenically it has advantages unsurpassed by any other section in the whole Southland of California. Several of the largest photoplay corporations of America have headquarters at Hollywood.

HOTEL GREEN

PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

THERE is no resort location in this country, more beautiful, more healthful, or more attractive, for people of refinement and leisure, than Pasadena. Automobiling is a leading feature in and about the place, and already fine roadways are being constantly and elaborately constructed, leading in all directions and placing within easy command of pleasure seekers many of the famous canyons of the mountains, important resort points and boulevards of the state, and a wealth of unusual objective for the interest of visitors. In this connection the great county in which Pasadena is located has completed a system of modern boulevards costing $3,500,000, and forming a system of hundreds of miles of the finest roadways in the United States. Of this system, Pasadena is, curiously enough, the central point.

With such road provisions, the automobile tourist, compelled elsewhere to lay by his car during the long season of ice and snow, finds here the charm of the road at its best estate.

The immensity of the Hotel Green plant, which covers with its ornate and beautiful buildings the area of almost two city blocks, makes the house sufficient within itself as a proposition of diversified entertainment, even were there no outlying city of unusual attraction. The Hotel is surrounded by Parks, and the City Park of ten acres adjoins on the south.

BEVERLY HILLS HOTEL

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIFORNIA

AN ideal winter and summer resort—situated in a twenty-acre park of tropical beauty, overlooking the City of Los Angeles, and the Pacific Ocean, with a full view of the beautiful Santa Monica Mountain Range—just twenty minutes by automobile over two paved boulevards to the shopping and amusement centers of city and beaches. Electric cars pass the Hotel doors direct to the city or beaches.

The Hotel and Bungalows contain 250 guest rooms and are built in picturesque mission style of architecture. The bungalows each contain from two to four bed-rooms, two baths, shower, sleeping porch, where one may sleep out of doors all the year, and large living room with open fireplace. Every room in the Hotel is an outside, sunny and cheerful one, with good exposure and beautiful outlook. Many of the Hotel rooms have large sleeping porches, others having private balconies. The Hotel is modern and complete in every detail pertaining to the comfort and convenience of its guests.

Adjacent to the Hotel is the Los Angeles Country Club with its famous 18-hole golf links, where one is privileged to play 365 days in the year.

Among the many and varied amusements to be enjoyed are Golf—Tennis—Billiards—Pool—Music—Dancing—Surf Bathing—Children's Playgrounds—and Horseback Riding; and for the latter the Hotel at Beverly Hills has, in its livery department a string of perfectly gaited Kentucky horses, with a competent riding master in charge. To the rear of the Hotel throughout the foothills and canyons, are the most alluring trails and roads for those who enjoy walking or horseback riding.

RAYMOND HOTEL

PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

JUST at the southerly limits of Pasadena, and crowning an eminence from which a magnificent view of the San Gabriel Valley and background of mountains is obtained, is the Raymond Hotel, one of California's great tourist resorts.

From the snowy heights of the Sierra Madre in the background to the riot of color in garden and orchard at one's feet stretches a landscape of matchless charm.

The Raymond is a hotel which, in location and appointments, is as unique as its surroundings. It is a place where particular people with means may find every comfort and convenience to which they have been accustomed at home, combined with unequaled facilities for outdoor sports of every description.

Carriage roads, automobile roads, winding sylvan paths that wander through shady nooks, and wide cemented walks lead up to the hotel. Upon entering The Raymond one is at once charmed by the variety and excellence of its appointments. There is the great dining hall with beamed ceilings and cozy tables, exquisitely decorated with the freshest flowers; the lanai (the great sun room), full of cozy corners and other comforts; the ball-room with its miniature stage, and many other features are provided for the entertainment and pleasure of guests.

Flowers are an important feature and attraction at The Raymond. Flowers everywhere, hundreds of varieties, in great profusion all over the entire estate. These are never cut. To furnish flowers for the public rooms, dining room, guest rooms, etc., there are acres of carnations in the open, and in lath houses.
